

Historic England

 LIVERPOOL
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Historic England titles are now published in partnership with Liverpool University Press.
Find out more on the Liverpool University Press website.

Reading the Peak District Landscape

John Barnatt

Describes and interprets the Peak District through time, explaining and mapping the landscape.

This book introduces a wealth of archaeological sites and landscapes. It explores patterns of settlement, with contrasting zones where villages dominate and others where scattered farmsteads are the norm. These settlements are found in radically different farming landscapes, some with medieval origins, others coming later when extensive upland commons were enclosed. Industrial sites and landscapes are examined, including those for quarrying for stone and mining for lead and coal.

AUTHOR

John Barnatt is an archaeologist and underground explorer, who worked for three decades as the Senior Survey Archaeologist for the Peak District National Park until recent retirement; he has spent many years recording underground workings.

JULY 2019

272 pages, 233 illustrations

276 × 219 mm

PAPERBACK

ISBN 9781848023796

£30 / $60

PUBLISHER

Historic England

Interested in publishing with us? Discuss your book proposal with Commissioning Editor Alison Welsby a.welsby@liverpool.ac.uk

Order online

UK & Rest of World www.liverpooluniversitypress.co.uk

US & The Americas www.global.oup.com/academic

 @LivUniPress
@HistoricEngland

 /liverpooluniversitypress
/HistoricEngland

 @LivUniPress
@HistoricEngland